

Transparency

Piercing the Veils of Identity Classes (From hand-eye co-ordination to corporate wealth)

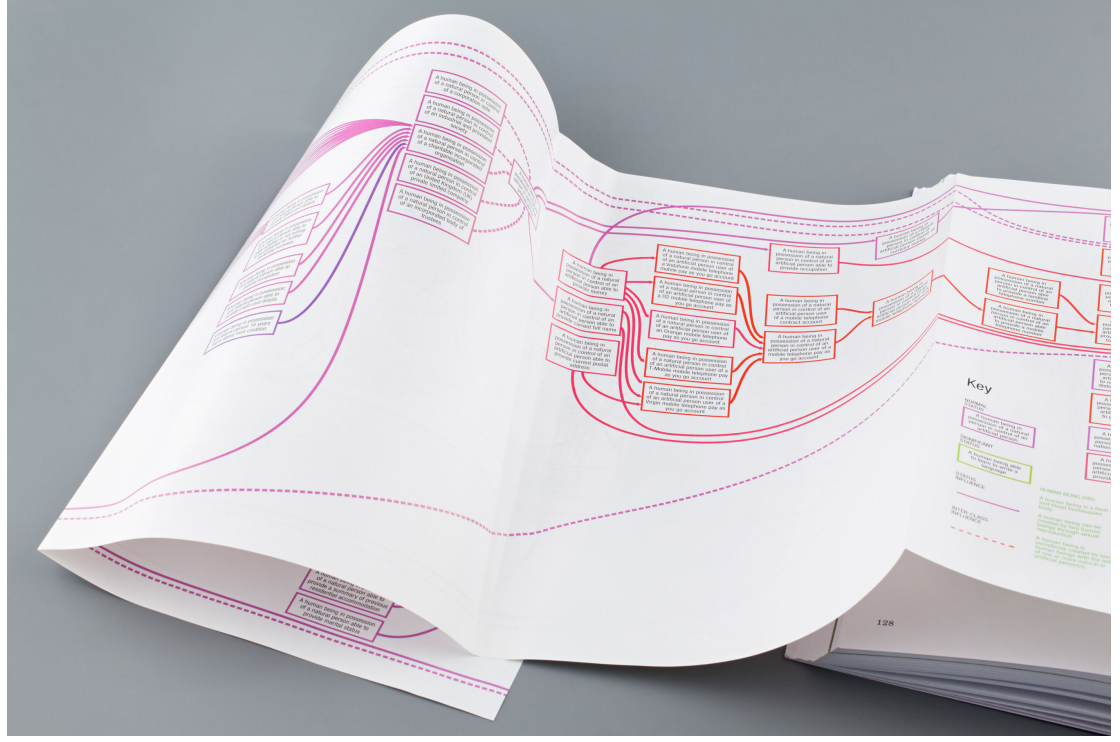

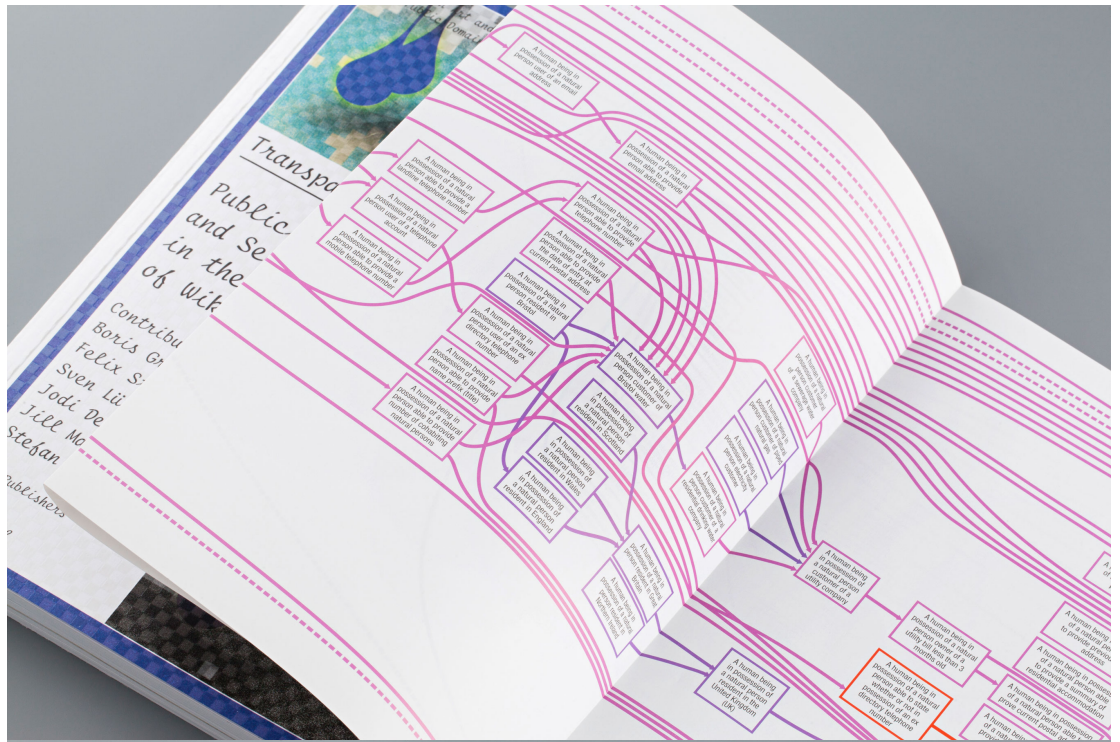

Heath Bunting

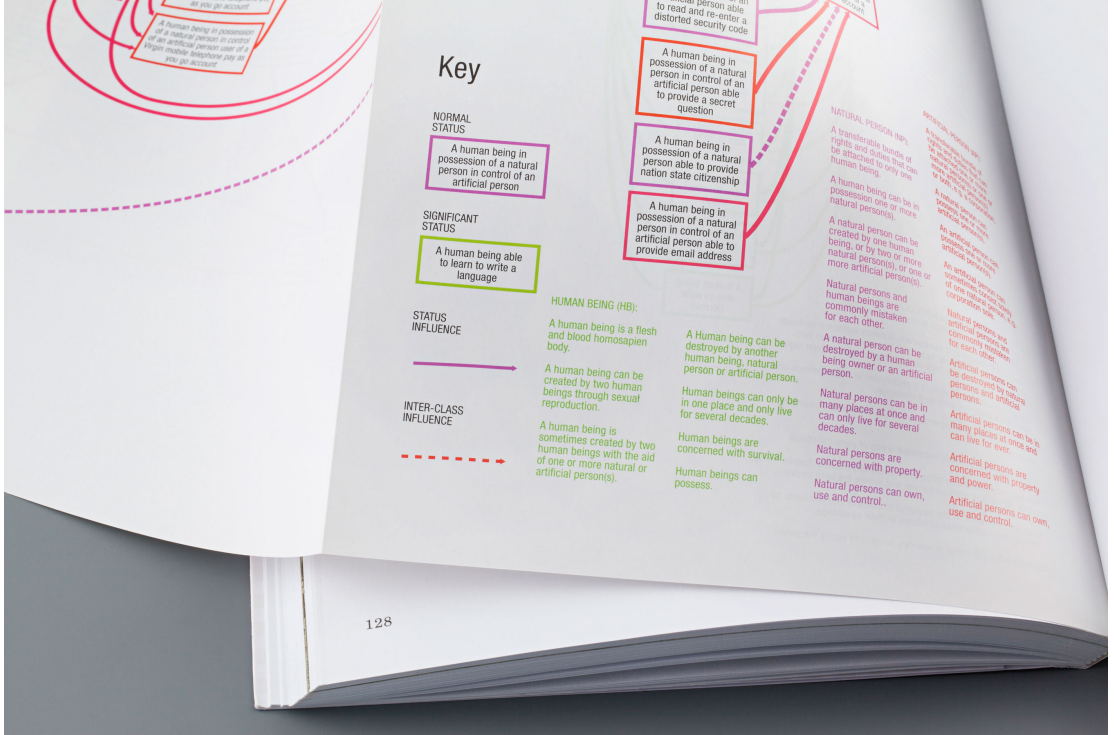

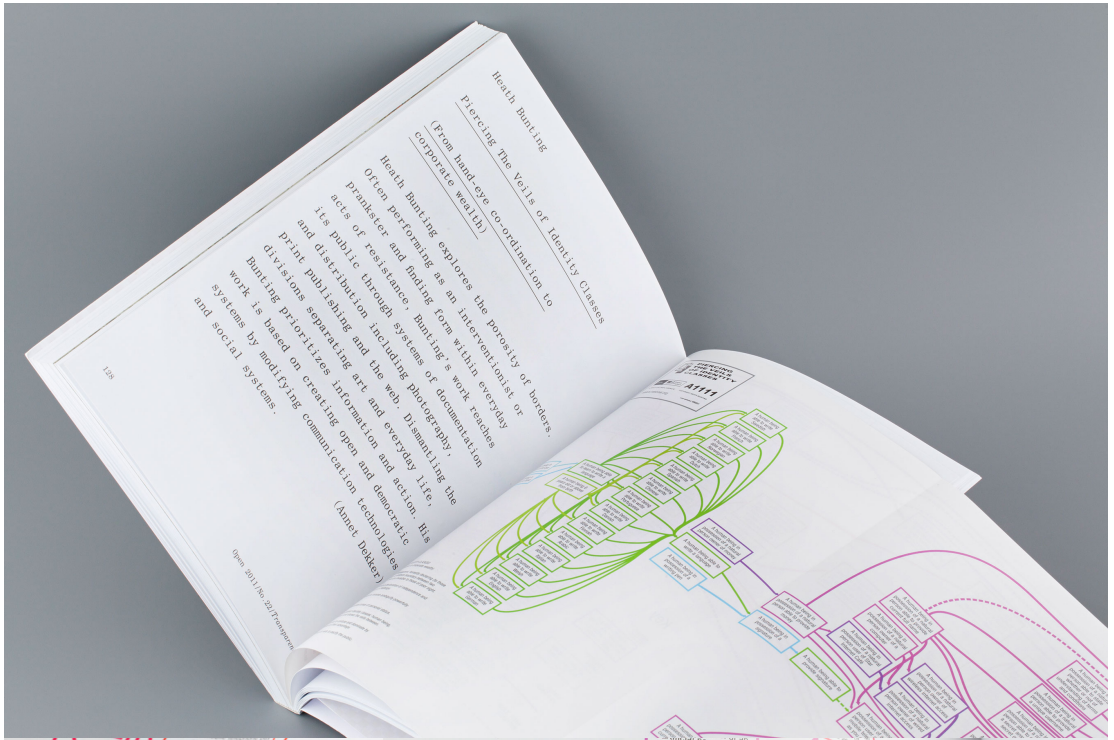

Artist contribution – November 18, 2011

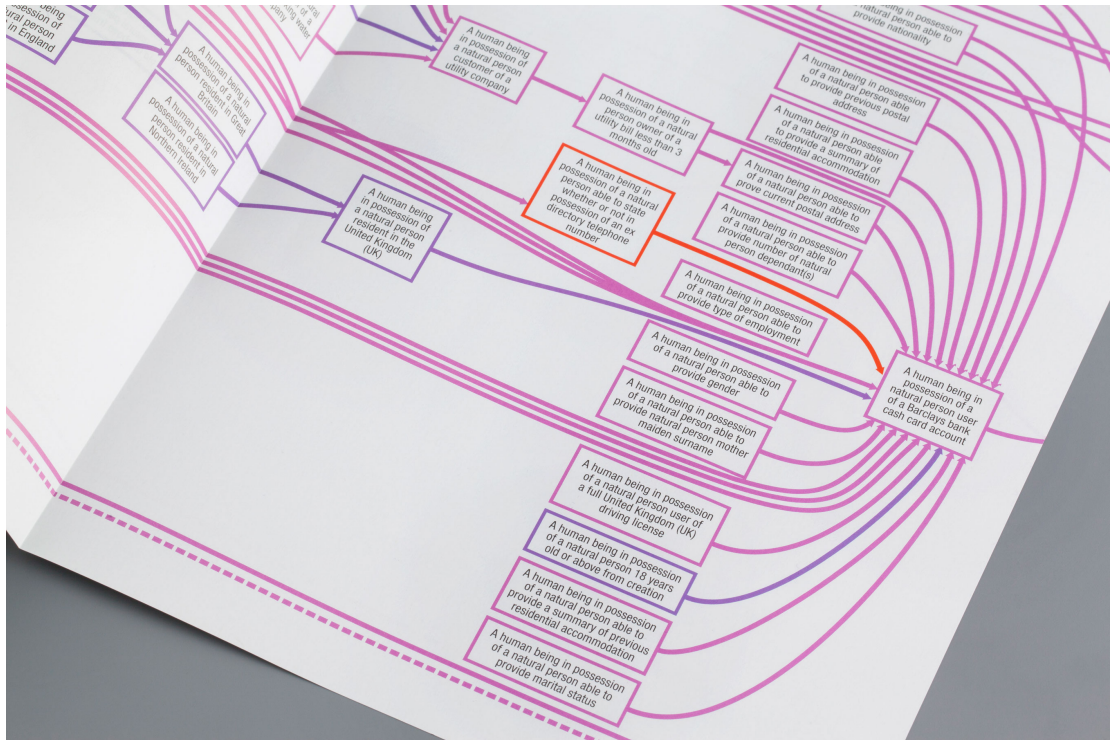

Heath Bunting explores the porosity of borders. Often performing as an interventionist or prankster and finding form within everyday acts of resistance, Bunting's work reaches its public through systems of documentation and distribution including photography, print publishing and the web. Dismantling the divisions separating art and everyday life, Bunting prioritizes information and action. His work is based on creating open and democratic systems by modifying communication technologies and social systems. (Annet Dekker)

Documentation

Heath Bunting is a computer artist and co-founder of net.art. He is banned for life from the USA because of his anti-genetic work. Currently he is producing an expert system for identity mutation.

Tags

Activism, Control, Democracy, Design, Media Society, Privacy, Transparency

This text was downloaded on April 2, 2025 from Open! Platform for Art, Culture & the Public Domain